

MUSIC SUPPLEMENT TO LUTE NEWS 156 (DECEMBER 2025): LUTE SOLOS OF ALESSANDRO PICCININI FOUND IN MANUSCRIPTS AND PRINTS OF OTHERS - PLUS ANONYMOUS SETTINGS OF LA SARABANDA & LA FOLIA

This supplement includes twenty-two solos for archlute and chitarrone by Alessandro Piccinini (1566-c.1638). Those for archlute/liuto attiorbato are in renaissance tuning (ffeff) with up to 14 courses. Those for chitarrone also use up to 14 courses but are in re-entrant renaissance tuning (P6/7/10/12/13-22), that is with the upper two courses an octave lower than the archlute so that the upper voice is mainly notated on the third course - interestingly some appearing in Joannes Aegidius Berner de Rettenwert's lute manuscript (CZ-Pnm IV.G.18) dated 1623. The music here are all original compositions by Piccinini, except P4/9/12/20/21 are his settings of popular tunes and grounds.¹ A few other works by Piccinini have been included in earlier supplements. His setting of the Bergamasco from his 1639 print, pp. 16-20 was included in Lutezine 118, the Chiacona from his 1623 print, p. 121 was edited for Lutezine 124 and his three settings of La Monaca from his 1623 print, pp. 84-85, 104-106 & 107 in Lutezine 120.

Alessandro Piccinini was born in Bologna in 1566 and died there in his early 70s in or before 1638. His father was the lutenist Leonardo Maria Piccinini (b.1530) who served the prince Christoph Nikolaus Radziwill, in Olyka in western Ukraine and his grandfather was probably the lutenist Alessandro di Domenico Piccinini in Bologna. The younger Alessandro was summoned by Duke Guglielmo Gonzaga to be lutenist at the court at Mantua in 1582 but his father turned the offer down as Alessandro and his two brothers, Girolamo (1573-1615) and (1575-1648), had already accepted posts as lutenists at the court of Alfonso II d'Este in Ferrara. After Duke Alfonso died in 1597, Alessandro was employed by the papal legate Cardinal Pietro Aldobrandini (d.1621) in Bologna and Rome.² His brothers left the Ferrara court to work abroad, Girolamo (1573-1615) from 1607 in the service of Cardinal Giudo Bentivoglio in Brussels and Filippo (1575-1648) is recorded as 'Felipe Pichinini cantor de theorbo/musico de instrumentos' from 1636 'al servizio della Maestà Catolica molto favorito' [in the service of the Catholic Majesty <i.e. Philip III (r.1598-1621) then Philip IV (r.1621-1665) kings of Spain> as a great favourite] in Brussels returning to Bologna for the last few years of his life. Alessandro's son Leonardo Maria was also a lutenist. No lute music by any family member other than Alessandro is known.³

Alessandro's music is found in two lute books, Di Alessandro Piccinini Bolognese Intavolatura di liuto, et di chitarrone Libro Primo (Bologna, heirs of Giovanni Paolo Moscatelli 1623) with a set of playing instructions in preface⁴ and Intavolatura di Liuto di Alessandro Piccinini Bolognese Libro Secondo (Bologna, Giacomo Monti e Carlo Zenero 1639) published the year after he died by his son Leonardo Maria.⁵

All the music here is in Italian tablature except P9a, P12 and concordances in Besard 1603 and Vallet I 1615 are in French and D-Dl 1-V-8 in German tablature. P1-4 are included in Piccinini's prints but were borrowed almost exactly from earlier sources rather than being composed by him. P1 is not identical to any of the four concordant sources which are for lute with no more than nine courses and Piccinini arranges it for archlute using twelve of the courses so he may have adapted it for archlute himself. In contrast, P2-4 are close concordances including diapasons so that he is presumed to have copied them with minimum change from the earlier sources by other composers: P1 by Vincenzo Pinti/Equitis Romani and known from sources from around 1600, anonymous in three manuscripts and in Besard Thesaurus Harmonicus 1603 ascribed Equitis Romani who is Vincenzo Pinti (d.1608).⁶ It seems that Piccinini was in contact with the circle of the Cavalier del Luto, as in the chapter 34 on new types of lutes in the instructions to Piccinini's Libro Primo, he says that he 'left one <lute> in Rome, which then ended up in the hands of the Cavalier del Liuto, who always used it, enjoying this invention infinitely; and when I was in Rome, after the death of the aforementioned Cavalier, the same lute returned to my hands.'⁷ P2-3 seem to have been copied directly or indirectly from Antoine Francisque Le Trésor D'Orphée 1600⁸ and P4 from Nicolas Vallet Le Secret de Muses/Paradisus Musicus Testudinis 1615.⁹ Curiously P4 combines two pieces in Vallet that are run together without a break, La Sarabande espagnolle (3 crotchets in a bar) and Gaillarde (3 minims in a bar), using the same diapasons but omitting the fingering indications and ornaments. The first part is also found in the ex-Dolmetsch manuscript GB-Eu Coll.2073 also lacking fingering indications and ornaments so Piccinini's exemplar might have been another intermediate source now lost. I also identified a concordance of the first part with a setting for mandora in D-USch 133b dated 1626 and transcribed for lute in the Lutezine.

P5-11 are found in four manuscript sources and include four items for lute and three for chitarrone that are closely concordant with music in his prints. Piccinini's versions use the same number of courses except the manuscript source of P5 omits an open twelfth course and the manuscript source of P8 omits an open fourteenth course that are present in Piccinini's print. P9a comprises twelve variations on the Sarabanda alla Francese on a ground also set by others (see S1 & S2 here and additional settings in the Lutezine) and copied into the manuscript Danzig 4022 on folios 5r (4 variations) 7r (3 variations) & 17v (5 variations) all similar in style. The first four are concordant with variations 1/2/3/6 of Piccinini's fourteen variations on the Aria di Saravanda in his 1623 print, and as Piccinini's name is found elsewhere in the same manuscript (see P12) it is tempting to suggest that all the variations of P9a are by him.¹⁰ Also the three variations in P9b and a further eight variations for mandora in D-USch 133b (in the Lutezine) are also in the same style and could be by him too (this manuscript also includes a mandora setting of P4). P11 is taken from an engraving plate in Italian tablature referred to on Peter Steur's website but I have not managed to ascertain its current whereabouts.¹¹ P10 is copied in Italian tablature on f. 144v of manuscript CZ-Pnm IV.G.18 and is followed by a transcription of the A strain only (omitting bars 10 & 11) into French tablature on f. 145r.

P12-22 are eleven items, one for lute and ten for chitarrone, ascribed to Piccinini by name or initials in three manuscript sources but not found in his prints.¹² The anonymous P15b is related to P15a in sharing the first strain and so is also likely to be by Piccinini. The two sources of P16 are quite different and provide alternative figuration for this corrente. The complex rhythms of some of the chitarrone solos in I-MOs Busta IV B have been reproduced as in the original but I am not sure how to interpret or play them.

For reasons of space, three other unica (together with other sources of some of those here), are included in the accompanying Lutezine: I-MOs Busta IV B, f. 16v Battaglia AP (not related to Piccinini 1639, pp. 43-49 Battaglia); I-MOs Busta IV B, f. 24v Colasone ATP; I-MOs Busta IV B, ff. 20v-21r [Tenore] 2.

¹³ Also included in the Lute Society Tablature Sheet 5/1.
